

Chloe Davis – 2019 Alumni

When I took my A Levels in 2019, I was unsure of what I wanted to do after my university degree. Taking Biology, Geography and History, my teachers had told me that I could take a wide variety of courses at university, and so I chose a mixture of the three, Archaeology. After two years of studying, I was given the opportunity to do a year of learning abroad, and so I ended up travelling to Colorado, USA, to study the Southwest cultures of indigenous peoples. When I return to England next year, I'll hopefully finish my degree and go on to do a Masters, specialising in Human Evolution. If someone had told me at the beginning of my A Levels that three years down the line I'd be sitting half-way around the world, ready to travel across the deserts of the Mexico-USA border, I'd have laughed. But, thanks to the university I got into, I now have this, and so many other, opportunities waiting.
